More than 40 per cent

By Will Stone

MORE than a third of all petty criminals in Haringey never complete their community service punishments.

According to probation service statistics obtained by the Advertiser, more than 40 per cent of criminals in the borough given community service placements are let off the work.

Petty criminals are handed community service orders as an alternative punishment to prevent overloading prison cells. Tasks typically involve clearing parks, removing graffiti or litter-picking. But out of 1,485 community service orders given in the past three years, just 905 were completed.

Lynne Featherstone, MP for Hornsey and Wood Green, will be writing to the probation service, Haringey Council and police about finding ways to shake up the monitoring of those carrying out community service. She said: "I'm really shocked. Community service can be a brilliant system helping people avoid prison and preventing criminals from re-offending."

"But when the system is being abused and community service is not completed it becomes a pointless exercise."

A spokeswoman for London Probation argued that there are various reasons why community service orders are not completed. She said: "Reasons for failure to attend can include long-term sickness, an offender being placed in custody due to a further offence or if an offender moves house, who would therefore also be transferred to another probation area.

"An offender is automatically returned to court after failing to attend two community order sessions without providing an adequate explanation."

"The court reviews the order and may re-sentence. If an offender fails to attend court, a warrant for their arrest is issued."

Nilgun Canver, cabinet member for enforcement and safer communities, defended the community service work carried out in the borough.

She said: "It is important to help offenders give something back to the community and feel that they are part of a successful team."

"The programme has carried out some fantastic work in Haringey that would not otherwise be done."

"We will continue to work with the probation service to help engage offenders in work that benefits neighbourhoods and helps the offender to re-engage with the world of work."

A spokeswoman for the police said that Safer Neighbourhood teams are involved in helping to identify areas where community service work needs improvement. news.haringey@nlhnews.co.uk

THE government announced last week that its compulsory scheme for every UK resident to own an identity card will now only be issued to those who want them. But does this mean we can all breathe a sigh of relief? "Absolutely not," said Caroline Day, coordinator of NO2ID Alexandra Palace Group. "The ID card is just the tip of the iceberg in the government's plan to create a national database with everyone's personal information on - this is the main threat to our privacy and civil liberties, and it's still there."

The proposed database - National Identity Register - will be designed to hold about 50 pieces of information on every individual, including race, religion, sexual orientation, medical history, fingerprints and other biometric details, which an accompanying ID card would be used to verify.

But even though UK residents will be allowed to choose to have an ID card or not, if they don't the government will still use their passport information to upload their personal details to the NIR, so many like Ms Day are asking the question, what's the difference?

She said: "Already the government is creating a metadatabase compiled from various sources such as police number plate recognition and other personal information contained in passports. But if administrative errors keep occurring on smaller databases they would also happen on larger ones where the results will be even more catastrophic.

"Already we have horror stories of innocent people, such as Jean Charles De Menezes, being treated as guilty due to some administrative blunder and who have died because of it - we're turning into a society where people are now guilty until proven innocent."

NO2ID Alexandra Palace was officially launched last month as Haringey's contribution to the national NO2ID campaign, which has 70,000 members, but Ms Day feels support needs to grow and fears that a lack of awareness, particularly in the younger generation, could one day allow the government to get its wish.

She said: "There is a worrying attempt to normalise identity issues in schools, such as where some children need to give fingerprints to get a book out of the library; this is happening in some schools even without parental consent.

"The younger generations will be affected the most if they are led to believe there's no problem giving away personal details no matter how pointless.

"Once this happens we'll have a whole generation of adults who won't think twice about giving personal information away, only for it to be shared by bureaucrats and government officials."

Worried: Caroline Day is urging the public to keep up pressure to stop the erosion of civil liberties

Mayor's shock defection puts end to seven Tory-free years

HARINGEY'S newly selected mayor has become the first Tory councillor in the borough for seven years after suddenly defecting to the party.

Alan Dobbie ended 27 years of membership to the Labour party last Wednesday with his shock decision to swap sides just seven weeks after his Labour colleagues elected him as the borough's mayor – a prestigious post he has now relinquished.

Mr Dobbie, who is now in opposition to the borough's 31 Labour councillors and 21 Liberal Democrats, said he knew the decision would lose him friends, but he has become disillusioned with Labour.

He said: "After a great deal of soul searching, I've taken the hardest decision of my life. It was a very difficult decision and I know it will hurt, anger and upset many."

"Time will tell whether Noel Park residents accept my apology."

He has vowed to continue to work on behalf of his Noel Park constituents, saying Labour is focusing on the wrong issues. But he insisted that he has no grudge against his former colleagues, dismissing suggestions that his departure was linked to councillor Claire Kober becoming Haringey Labour Party leader last December.

Ms Day added the scheme is the last thing the government should be thinking about during a recession since it would cost an estimated minimum £5.8billion – nearly £1billion of which has already been spent since 2003.

Clive Menzies, a member of Alexandra Palace Group, helped run a NO2ID stall in The Broadway, Crouch End, last Saturday and was pleased with the support. He said: "The support we received was beyond what we had expected. It is not beyond the wit of man to keep information where it needs to be and transmitted on a need-to-know basis. I'm strongly against the bogus justification that ID cards will in some way make us safer. There is no benefit whatsoever. In fact crimes like identity fraud will increase significantly if they were introduced.

"It's all about creating an atmosphere of suspicion, which is already strongly felt on public transport. If more attention was paid to history, more people would realise these kind of totalitarian policies, which deprive people of their civil liberties, have been tried before and haven't worked.

"The important thing is to keep up the pressure. A battle may have been won with the government backing down on making ID cards compulsory, but the war is not over yet."

The NO2ID Alexandra Palace Group meets every second Wednesday of the month at 8.15pm in The Gate pub in Station Road, Wood Green. For more information about the group email alexandra.palace@no2id.net or visit the website on www.no2id.net

Gwen Rule, Skills Account Manager, London Brokerage Ltd

Helping drive a business forward

Advertisement Feature

Lee Wickens, Addison Lee, Training Manager: Addison Lee has built a great brand in the private hire industry and today enjoys an unrivalled reputation for moving people and parcels in London. We employ over 2,000 drivers across London, so as you can imagine we have a range of skills challenges, stretching from management to operations, that any business of our size would have. We're a business that has thrived because we've been able to give people a consistently positive experience whenever they use Addison Lee – people know what to expect and we deliver. We've also focused on doing everything we can to improve that experience - from satellite navigation through to text message booking confirmation. In doing so, we've improved the efficiency of our business and that's great, but as ever, making new ideas work is only possible if you have the right people, with the right skills. Making sure our staff are comfortable with the level of service we expect has been a real challenge. This includes making sure team leaders are able to manage people effectively but also letting people do their job in the best way they see possible. In the long run, we're successful because our customers keep coming back to us and our people like working for a business that trusts them and invests in them. It's simple but it works.

Gwen Rule, Skills Account Manager, London Brokerage Ltd: I match the needs and ambitions of businesses to the best available training. Addison Lee has been well recognised for high levels of innovation which have helped the business generate a market leading position. But like other companies in the sector, it has struggled with staff turnover. Of course, not every business has the resources to invest in new technology or equipment, especially in the current climate, but there is free advice available to help get the most from your people. We've worked with Addison Lee to find training that delivers results. For drivers, the company has invested in NVQ level 1 and 2 courses in Road Passenger Vehicle Driving, which includes health and safety, customer service and environmentally efficient driving techniques. It's had a big impact. Their average fuel consumption has fallen by 15 per cent, customer satisfaction is up and, of the 500 drivers that have gone through the NVQ, all of them are still working with the business. Addison Lee has also invested in level 2 NVQs in Management for its call centre supervisors. They've taken it and run with it and now write their own manager's handbook as part of the course - something they've pushed for. It involves direct feedback from their staff, so it's really improved the way teams listen and work together too. What's great though is that there is a real trickle down through the company. Teams that have had training feel better about their work, are more confident in making their own decisions and are ultimately more productive. Those that haven't are really keen to do so. What has made this work for Addison Lee is a combination of the right training and a company that recognises how to compete in a difficult market.

Life for killer after ex-lover reports boasts

By Henry Ellis

A MAN was jailed on Friday for gunning down a man in the street 11 years ago after a former lover went to the police.

A baseball cap found in Mahamed Farah's hand conclusively linked Anthony Carter, 36, to the shooting in September 1998.

The 37-year-old waiter of Drayton Road, Tottenham, died after Carter shot him in the head at the junction of Jansen Road and Philip Lane, Tottenham. Carter was arrested and quizzed by police at the time, but he was released without charge.

It was only when one of his former girlfriends went to police saying that he had confessed to the murder that the case was reopened.

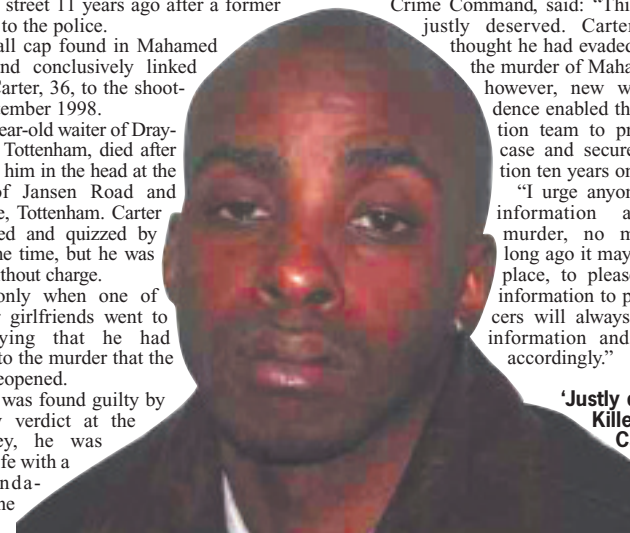

After he was found guilty by a majority verdict at the Old Bailey, he was jailed for life with a recommendation that he serves at least 20 years behind bars.

Investigating officer, Detective Inspector John Sandlin of the Met's Homicide And Serious Crime Command, said: "This verdict is justly deserved. Carter probably thought he had evaded justice for the murder of Mahamed Farah, however, new witness evidence enabled the investigation team to progress this case and secure a conviction ten years on.

"I urge anyone who has information about any murder, no matter how long ago it may have taken place, to please give that information to police. Officers will always assess the information and act on it accordingly."

A WOMAN cannot leave home to go to work after she was attacked by a group in her street.

Lily Roberts, 64, of Sherringham Avenue, Tottenham, says her neighbourhood has suffered anti-social behaviour from a large family of between 15 and 25 people for the past 18 months.

According to Mrs Roberts, the group assemble on the streets and intimidate other residents by playing loud music, drinking excessively and use neighbours' gardens to dump their rubbish.

On July 1, when Mrs Roberts was returning home at about 11pm, the street to her house was blocked. She said: "When I tried to get past a woman poured beer over me and shouted racist abuse. A man grabbed me from behind, pushed me against a car and tried to strangle me before another man intervened by pulling me away from them.

"Thankfully he took me home.

"I only noticed my eye was damaged half an hour later. Either the man who attacked me had poked my eye or my glasses, which he bent, had somehow pressed into my eye."

Mrs Roberts was told by doctors at Moorfields Eye Hospital, based in Old Street, that she had two burst blood vessels and bruising to her eye and advised her to rest for three weeks.

Haringey police have arrested and bailed a 47-year-old woman on suspicion of racially aggravated ABH. Police are still tracing the man who attacked Mrs Roberts and would like to hear from the man who helped her.

Mrs Roberts has written to David Lammy, MP for Tottenham and Wood Green, to ask for help. She said: "I'm wary of even leaving my home. Now the woman has been bailed I don't know what she might try. Mr Lammy promised a safer Tottenham. These people should be evicted from their house."

Call Detective Constable Troy de Barry of Haringey's Community Safety Unit on 020 8345 1944 or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Having a ball: The Wake Up, Shake Up class at Bishop Stopford's School

Extra PE helps pupils to top of their class

EXERCISE before classes is helping secondary school children perform better in key subjects.

Pupils at three schools in the borough are getting active during assembly or in class as part of the Healthy Schools initiative and according to Jan Hickman, the a lead officer for physical education and sport, the activity is helping them to perform better in class.

She said that schools started taking part in these exercises outside of physical education classes to help meet the local area agreement target of two hours of activity each week.

Year 7 pupils at St Anne's School, have a 20-minute Wake Up, Shake Up exercise and tai chi session in the playground once a week.

Students at Albany School do exercises during year assemblies and Bishop Stopford's School have a breakfast club for pupils and morning trampolining and basketball sessions.

Ms Hickman said: "They're not meant to get hot and sweaty before class, the point is it's introducing them to different types of exercise. Some schools are reporting that the exercise is particularly good before literacy and numeracy classes."

Harry Potter And The Half-Blood Prince (12A)

Dir: David Yates

Starring: Daniel Radcliffe, Emma Watson, Rupert Grint

WHAT'S always impressed about the Harry Potter cinematic juggernaut is its consistent quality of what's now six films.

Right from the start, when we first caught the train from Platform 9¾, different directors have excelled in maximising the adventure elements and taking us by the seat of our pants into the heart of J.K. Rowling's parallel universe.

But in the last one, director David Yates wisely balanced the magical mayhem with individual stories of emerging adolescence, and in this he returns to transform Hogwarts into a horny high school of teenage angst.

Harry loves Ginny but she's making out with Dean. Hermione is pursued by Cormac but she blatantly fancies Ron. Ron doesn't know what he wants, but ends up snogging Lavender.

Good to see the characters progressing but Yates also pays attention to the darker elements as the grip of Voldemort tightens, and it's quite pleasing to see Draco fancying absolutely no one, just wanting to pulverise Harry and his chums into tiny little pieces.

Top table: Harry (Radcliffe) and Hermione (Watson) face troubles in their teens

Indeed, in many respects this is the most satisfying film of the franchise, as the characters are more rounded and there is a good mixture of light and shade - although I did miss the rampant imagination of a director like Alfonso Cuarón (Pt III) who transformed Potter into a nightmarish twilight zone of twisted desire.

Out of the new lot, Jim Broadbent does a characteristically brilliant turn as Potions Professor Horace Slughorn, while newcomer Jessie Cave is perfect as rampant bundle of teenage hormones Lavender Brown.

With relief to Potter fans everywhere, Emma Watson decided to stay for the rest of the series and her advancement in the acting stakes, with Grint not far behind, is the most marked of the unholy trinity in a sensitive performance as Hermione finally encounters a force over which her magic has no power. With a two-part finale on the darkening horizon the challenge now is to maintain standards and finish the series with a tumultuous bang, to make this one of the great big-screen adventures of our time.

The most cringeworthy, pseudo-documentary laugh-riot of the year has arrived. Borat probably shades it but there are still enough hilarious set pieces from Sacha Baron Cohen as the camper-than-Christmas, "greatest Austrian since Hitler" fashion icon.

Public Enemies (15)

A misfiring gangster flick and a poor relation to the Cagney classic, The Public Enemy. Johnny Depp plays John Dillinger, Christian Bale plays his nemesis, but both fire blanks under Michael Mann's heavy-handed direction.

Sunshine Cleaning (15)

Ain't no sunshine when they come. Amy Adams and Emily Blunt star as two quirky sisters who set up Sunshine Cleaning to clean up crime scenes. Shame they couldn't disinfect their script from its glib sentimentality and a contrived need for kookiness.

Telstar (15)

What The Boat That Rocked should have been if it had any balls. Suitably sleazy look at the life and times of maverick 1960s record producer Joe Meek who turned down the Beatles. Con O'Neill as Meek is terrifying and brilliant.

Leg it down to the circus

A MINI La Clique pulls up its big top at Jackson's Lane next Saturday.

Circus Menagerie is the name of the circus cabaret that boasts the same high-octane variety of acts which has propelled internationally renowned La Clique to be such a smash in town.

Acrobats, jugglers, aerial theatre and magicians compete for the most applause at the Highgate venue, in further confirmation of the arts centre's drive towards establishing itself as a prominent receiving house for circus acts.

Indeed, the venue has arranged for So & So Circus to curate the event especially for Jackson's Lane, which has attracted some up-and-coming talents for your delectation including: Hoop La La, stars of last year's Britain's Got Talent, returning to the venue to perform their blend of contortion and hula-hooping; Ian Marchant is T(Hat) Juggler, a throw-back to the lost days of vaudeville; Matt Burch is part comedian, part acrobat; SIN Cru performs breakdance and contemporary dance; while Christian Lee is the magician and compere, performing close-up illusions to full stage numbers.

All the fun for the family is promised at the Lane next Saturday at 8pm and tickets cost £12.50 (£10.50 concessions) but, if you can't make that - or fancy a little pre-entertainment - the various acts from the show will also be popping up around Highgate Woods this Saturday between 1pm and 3pm.

● For more details and, for information about the Circus Summer School at Jackson's Lane, call the box office on 020 8341 4421.

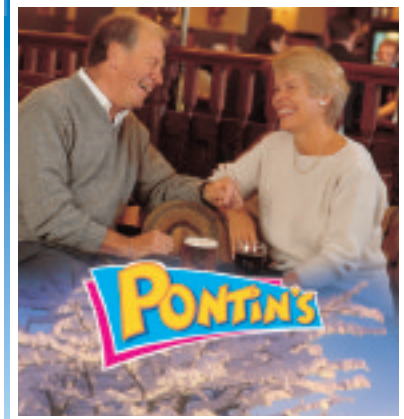

Out and about

● JOHN Etheridge returns to Lauderdale House tomorrow night. The lauded guitarist appears with his Special Quartet - 'special' because it re-unites an acclaimed rhythm section and keyboard player Steve Lodder. They perform at the venue in Highgate Hill, Highgate from 8.30pm. Tickets cost £9 (£7.50 concessions). Call 020 8348 8716.

● LOUNGING and laughter Downstairs at the King's Head this Sunday. From 2pm to 5pm there's mellow Jazz with The Trio and guests (admission £5), while from 8pm there's the ever popular Comedy Variety Cabaret featuring: Bethany Black, Maureen Younger, Jim Holland and Tiernan Douieb. Admission is £7 (£5 concessions). For more details and reservations call the venue in Crouch End Hill, Crouch End on 020 8340 1028.

● THE Children's Summer Funfair is back at Ally Pally next Sunday. Based, once again, in the Pavilion Car Park there's plenty of family fun including rides, dodgems, stalls with prizes, kids' rides and refreshments. It is open daily from noon to 7pm and runs until Sunday, September 13. Admission is free but there's a charge for rides. For more details call the palace on 020 8352 2121.

CYPRUS NEED OUR SUPPORT - BE THERE!!

Cyprus - A member Country of the European Union and Commonwealth - Under Turkish Military Occupation for 35 years!

How can Cyprus, a EU Member country be occupied by a foreign power, i.e. Turkey, who also aspires to become an EU Member herself?

Turkey's Obligations

The EU has taken positive steps for Turkey to join the European family, providing she meets her obligations, recognising all EU members including the Republic of Cyprus, which is an equal EU Member.

The Tragedy of the Missing - A Humanitarian Issue - The Need for Closure

Cypriots, including British Cypriots, are still missing in Cyprus. We encourage the continuation of the search for the whereabouts and/or fate of the Missing. Greek & Turkish Cypriots are co-operating but Turkey must give access to her files. The Org. of Relatives of Missing Cypriots (UK) and supporters held a vigil/picket outside the House of Commons on Tuesday and lobbied their MPs.

Parliamentary Support

At a meeting in the House of Commons on Tuesday, Members of Parliament reaffirmed that they will continue and increase their support for a viable solution which will address the issues of concern expressed by the people of Cyprus for the benefit of all her citizens.

Cyprus belongs to the Cypriots!

The 43,000 Turkish troops plus illegal settlers from Turkey outnumber the Turkish-Cypriot citizens in the occupied area of Cyprus, the latter purposely to change the demography of Cyprus. Turkey must withdraw her troops from Cyprus so that Cypriots can pursue their own solution.

The Rally - Sunday 19th July 2009 - JOIN US!

Before the Rally in Trafalgar Square begins at 4.30pm, wreaths for Cyprus will be laid at the Cenotaph on behalf of British Cypriot and Cypriot veterans of the 2nd World War. Petitions will also be handed in to 10 Downing Street and the Turkish Embassy by the National Federation of Cypriots in the UK.

Win a meal for four at The Arnos Arms Harvester

Restaurant News

FANCY a night away from the hot stove? Then we've cooked up just the competition for you.

We've teamed up with The Arnos Arms Harvester in Bowes Road to offer four lucky families a meal and the chance to enjoy the newly refurbished restaurant down the road.

The pub and grill is giving away four family meals – for each winner and three guests – in celebration of its makeover.

"The Arnos Arms is an ideal place to meet family and friends, whether they're looking for a great meal out or just to enjoy a relaxing drink," said manager Dianne Walden.

"We have put a great deal of effort into creating a welcoming atmosphere that people will want to come back to time after time."

Dianne went on to talk about the menu including: original spit-roast chicken and succulent steaks and ribs, New Zealand lamb shank and Oriental duck, besides unlimited trips to the famous Harvester Salad Cart with every main meal.

"Main courses on our Earlybird menu start at just £4.99 and this offer is now available every day until 6.30pm," she said. "We have the perfect menu to enjoy from our expertly controlled flame deck."

For more details go to www.harvester.co.uk

● To win one of the four meals all you have to do is answer this simple question:

Which of these ingredients would not be included in a traditional salad? (1) Lettuce (2) Aubergine (3) Cucumber?

Send your answer on a postcard, along with your name, address and phone number to: Harvester Competition, The Haringey Advertiser, 4th Floor, Refuge House, 9-10 River Front, Enfield, EN1 3SZ.

Entries should reach us no later than next Thursday and the first four correct entries picked out of our cart will win the meals.

● Prizes must be claimed by October 31 2009; meals can be up to three courses; prize meals do not include drinks; prize can only be claimed at The Arnos Arms Harvester.

Properties Urgently Needed In Your Area

The current economic crisis in USA and Europe has seriously affected among other businesses, Estate Agencies in the UK and London specifically. However, business from our side is booming and our agency has the ability to let a property within three to four days.

We have proved through our long history that we are exceptionally efficient and effective, and we employ qualified staff in providing full management, excellent customer care service, on time rent payments to landlords and more than anything else honest in business and in character too.

For your information Varosi Lettings has won many tendering agreements with local councils including Haringey, Islington, Barnet, Enfield, Hackney, Redbridge and Waltham Forest. Needless to point out that hundreds of Lettings Agencies apply for contracts with the local councils but only a small number are qualified. In a recent tender competition with Redbridge and Waltham Forest, we are proud to say that our agency was ranked the THIRD BEST AGENCY.

Unlike your local agencies that charge you between 10% and 15% for managing your property and additional 6% to 10% for finding you tenants we offer to you our special scheme where you pay NOTHING for finding tenants and NOTHING for managing the property for you. We can assure you that there are no hidden charges.

Indeed this is a special offer under our 0% COMMISSION RATE scheme. The landlord doesn't pay any commission for letting the property or indeed for its management. Please contact me on 020 7263 8100 for more details.

RARING TO GO

By Dominique Stafford

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR striker Jermain Defoe admits that he cannot wait for the new season to get under way after enduring an injury-plagued second half to the last campaign.

Defoe picked up a foot injury which ruled him out of action for almost three months shortly after rejoining Spurs from Portsmouth for £15million in January, restricting him to just six league starts in the remainder of the season.

"That rest was more than enough for me," he said. "I was injured towards the end of last season and I missed a lot of games."

"I always look forward to pre-season, coming in and training with the lads and having the banter with them."

"You miss that when you are away. I'll come back feeling good, raring to go again and hopefully have a really big season."

Meanwhile, the expected summer exodus from Tottenham began last week when Ivory Coast international midfielder Didier Zokora completed his move to Seville.

The deal appeared to have fallen through after the Spanish outfit failed to meet Tottenham's valuation of the player, but the two clubs finally agreed a fee on Wednesday.

Zokora signed for Spurs from St Etienne for £8.2million after the 2006 World Cup and quickly became an integral part of the midfield at White Hart Lane – making 134 appearances.

But his first-team opportunities became increasingly limited following Wilson Palacios' move from Wigan Athletic in January, and boss Harry Redknapp was believed to be happy for him to go.

And Adel Taarabt has confirmed his desire to leave the club after struggling to make an impact at White Hart Lane.

The 20-year-old midfielder, who spent the end of last season on loan at Queens Park Rangers, has failed to make a single league start in more than two years at Tottenham and is being linked with a move to Malaga.

"I've been here for two years and never really had a chance," he said. "There are clubs that want me who are ready to give me a chance. I want to improve and prove my talent."

"If I stay at Tottenham I would not be able to do that. I want to leave."

❑ Tottenham Hotspur face their first pre-season friendly tonight when they make the trip to newly promoted League One side Exeter City (7.45pm).

Williamson stars at British trials

RISING sprint star Simeon Williamson booked his place at next month's World Athletics Championships in Berlin with a stunning display at the British trials in Birmingham over the weekend.

The 23-year-old Highgate Harrier produced a blistering run in Saturday's final of the 100metres in the trials, which doubled up as the British Championships, clocking a time of 10.05seconds into a strong headwind to leave a high-class field – including hot favourite Dwain Chambers – trailing in his wake.

"It's good to win a national title," he said. "I'm happy to win my first national title after being the bridesmaid so many times."

"It was all about booking my place in the worlds. I can see a few things I need to work on, but it was a very well put together race."

"I've just got to go out and put in a good performance in Germany. Hopefully I won't get injured like I did at the Beijing Olympics. A medal is a possibility – if you make the final anything is possible."

Williamson added: "I was hoping to go sub ten seconds, but obviously it wasn't the case. Now I've got to go back on the circuit and start competing with the big boys."

And he will get the chance to take on the best when he competes against world record holder Usain Bolt in the London Grand Prix at Crystal Palace later this month.

Meanwhile, sprinter Leon Baptiste from Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club secured a bronze medal in the men's 200m in Birmingham on Sunday.

After reaching the final as the fastest qualifier, Baptiste looked set to finish in second place until he was overtaken by the experienced Marlon Devonish just before the line.
